Owing to the amount of social news coming in each week for the Sunday paper, it is necessary to have all programs, club and church announcements and reports in on Friday afternoon. To avoid errors, all musical programs should be typed, whenever possible. We are sure those who have such items for the Sunday paper will cooperate with us to that extent.

THE ARDMOREITE.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Everets will entertain the members of the Bixby club this evening at their home, 215 Bixby avenue.

Bridge Affair at Hotel Ardmore

One of the most elaborate bridge parties of the season was given yesterday at Hotel Ardmore when Mrs. Sol Lowenstein entertained with twenty-eight tables in the gymnasium.

The mezzanine floor, where the party was given, was banked with chrysanthemums, which were used in large bunches. Autumn leaves in bronze and red added much to the effectiveness of the decorations, in contrast to the large fragrant blossoms.

Little Miss Helen Elise Lowenstein, very dainty and sweet in a colonial frock of taffeta with orange flowers in a colonial effect, met the guests at the door with the tulle cards.

Receiving with Mrs. Lowenstein were Mrs. Melvin Riber, Mrs. Merchant of Volante, Mrs. H. Levy, Mrs. William Schwarz and Mrs. W. Hoffmeyer, Mrs. Gene Cruise, Mrs. Wayne Heath and Mrs. Schwarz assisted the hostess.

Besides the table prizes which were given, three high score favors were given. Mrs. Fred Ellis, Cecile Dilligham, and Mrs. A. V. West making the three high scores.

A delicious luncheon was served to a hundred and twenty guests.

A Half-Century Courtship

WAITED 20 YEARS FOR GASSER; WILL CONTINUE TO RUN FARM

CHICKEN, Okla.—"I knew this thing was going to happen some time. I've waited 20 years for it and now here it is. I don't know exactly what to do about it."

This is the view of J. M. Pendley, on whose farm a 44,000,000 foot gas well has been drilled in wildest territory, jumping the producing area for the Chickasha field three and one half miles.

"I bought out the fellow who drew the claim to this 160 acres at Lawton in 1901," said Mr. Pendley. "In April of the next year, I moved to the farm and have lived there ever since. I built a little house, the one I still live in. Four of my five children were born there. Nearly 20 years ago, a crew of government surveyors camped near my place. I got quite well acquainted with them. One of them told me that some day that very farm would produce oil and gas. I've had a lot of chances to sell out, but I figured that fellow was right, so I held on. It was pretty tough, sometimes, but I managed to buy and pay for another 160 acres. When they brought in the gasser, I didn't owe anybody a dime on the place. They tell me that my royalties will mean a lot of money. I gave the lease on the land to get the well drilled, but I don't aim to sell the royalty.

"This place is home to me and my family. I don't reckon we'll move to town. We'll just fix the house up a little and live right on here where we sort o' know the lay of the land. I reckon they won't build so many derricks that I won't have a little patch here and there to farm."

WELCOME, RUFFLES!

Ruffles are back again—exactly where they should be—on youthful fashions. Stiff, quaint organdie ruffles, perky taffeta ruffles, soft sheer georgette ruffles—choose whichever you like and then use rows and rows of them.

The sleeve, if there is any, should be ruffled; the skirt, if it is puffed, should be ruffled; then the whole effect is delightfully feminine. These styles are very becoming to a slight figure, transforming the straight-line style in curves.
